

Conflict Minerals Policy

The US Securities and Exchange Commission has adopted reporting rules regarding conflict minerals disclosure and reporting as mandated by the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act. These rules require certain public companies to disclose their use of “Conflict Minerals” in the manufacture of their products.

Conflict Minerals include gold, tin, tantalum, tungsten which originate from the DRC or any adjoining country. The reporting requirements are based on concerns that revenues obtained from the mining and transport of Conflict Minerals finance the ongoing conflict within the DRC and adjoining countries thus contributing to the resulting humanitarian crisis.

While we as a privately held company are not subject to Conflict Minerals reporting we are aware that our customers may be and being part of that supply chain, we are committed to helping them remain in compliance with their reporting requirements.

A survey of our suppliers has determined that the products used within our processes do not contain Conflict Minerals or derivatives. River Street Metal Finishing, Inc. supports the goals as set forth with the Dodd-Frank to end violence and conflict within the DRC and will continue to monitor suppliers for conflict-free minerals.
